City Hospital in Good Condition, Free from Debt

Judge Betts, Harry H. Flemming and Delancy N. Matthews Re-elected to Board of Managers—Interesting Facts Disclosed in Official Annual Report.

The annual meeting of the Kingston City Hospital was held Monday evening at the hospital at which time the managers for the year were elected and reports of the different officers of the hospital were received. The report of President James A. Betts shows that the hospital at the present time is in a very prosperous condition and that all debts have been paid and the past year has been one of the most successful in the history of the institution.

Judge James A. Betts, H. H. Flemming and D. N. Matthews were re-elected managers of the hospital for the year 1926. No meeting of the board of directors was held. This meeting for the election of officers will be held at a later date or possibly postponed until the first regular meeting of the board of managers.

The following report was submitted by Judge Betts, president of the hospital:

To the Members of The City of Kingston Hospital:

In conformity to the by-laws of this institution I respectfully submit the annual report of its condition and its work.

Again we urge upon our citizens and physicians the desirability of joining our hospital. The payment of $20 by any physician and the payment of $25 by any other citizen constitutes any person a life member of this hospital with a right to take an equal part with any other members in the hospital work, also the payment of $10 by any person will constitute that person a member of the hospital for one year with the same privileges as are enjoyed by life members.

The president and managers urge that a continued effort be made to increase the number of members of this corporation.

We have received donations during the past year as follows:

Democrats Want Greater Reduction

On the Incomes From $20,000 to $100,00—Capital Stock Tax Is Wiped Out—Fight on Inheritance Tax Will Be Postponed.

Washington, Jan. 12.—For the first time in the history of recent tax revision, the "little fellow" with an income of below $10,000 is not the bone of contention between Republican and Democratic revenue cutters.

The principal fight on the new tax bill when it reaches the floor of the senate will be on the incomes of from $20,000 to $100,000, with the Democrats standing out for $44,000,000 greater reduction in this class of incomes than the Republicans proposed bill that has already passed the house.

The Democrats were encouraged in their efforts to revise the house bill today by their first victory, in which they wiped out the capital stock tax by the narrow vote of 3 to 1 in the senate finance committee.

To make up the capital stock tax increase of the corporation tax from the 12 1/2 per cent of the house bill to 13 1/2 per cent.

This proposal is understood to meet with the approval of the majority of corporations because the extra burden is thrown largely on the successful. The stock tax levied a tribute from corporations regardless of the condition of their balance sheets.

Both parties agreed to postpone the fight on inheritance taxes until after the entire bill has been reported, probably early next week.

400 Persons Die In Flood Disaster

Tucson, Ariz., Jan. 12.—Four hundred persons are now known to be dead and more than ten thousand rendered homeless by the flood disaster in the Mexican provinces of Durango and Nayarit according to information from the headquarters of the Southern Pacific of Mexico railroad received here today.

An appeal has been made to the American Red Cross for relief in a telegram to the local office of the Southern Pacific of Mexico from H. B. Ticebom, president of the road, who is now on the west coast.

Authentic reports indicate intense suffering in the districts flooded by the San Pedro and Santiago rivers. Ten thousand are homeless. Money is needed for provisions to be sent from Empalme to the flooded district with as little delay as possible.

Mmanuel Bonilla, president of the relief committee, states that on account of lack of communication with the flooded area, he is unable to give exact details, but the number of deaths is large and there is great need of assistance for the destitute and homeless.

The loss will reach five million pesos, he reports.

Announcements were also made that the Southern Pacific of Mexico would handle freight destined for such relief.

RELIEVES MEXICO WILL ASSURE FAIR TREATMENT

Washington, Jan. 12.—President Coolidge is confident that no rupture of relations with Mexico will develop out of the present controversy over the new land and petroleum laws he told callers at the White House today.

While the administration is firm in its intention of preventing unjust confiscation of American property south of the Rio Grande, the situation is not considered one for "big stick" methods and Mr. Coolidge believes that Mexico will herself take the necessary corrective steps to assure American property holders of fair treatment.

Coal Conference Breaks Up Without Agreement

Negotiations To End Anthracite Strike Were Abruptly Terminated—Lewis Says Operators Were Determined To Break Up Parley—Operators Say Lewis's Policy of "Rule or Ruin" Was Responsible.

New York, Jan. 12.—With both sides bitterly blaming each other for their failure to reach an agreement, negotiations between operators and miners, designed to end the anthracite strike, were abruptly terminated this afternoon. No date for another meeting was set.

The conferees had been in almost continuous session for the last two weeks. John L. Lewis, president of the United Mine Workers of America, immediately issued a statement in which he declared that "the operators were determined to break up the conference without an agreement."

The miners reluctantly voted to adjourn the joint conference, Lewis declared.

Operators Blame Lewis. Lewis's policy of "rule or ruin" was responsible for the break up, according to the operators. They said Lewis "absolutely refuses to consider any constructive policies."

What proposals he did offer were "neither workable nor practical."

"The break up of the conference," the operators declared, "is due to just one cause—the refusal of Mr. Lewis to accept any form of settlement that would bring assurance of peace to the industry."

Appeal Fruitless. The adjournment of the joint conference came at 12:05 after a very brief session which was delayed for an hour and a half by the non-appearance of two of the miner delegates. Just before the break up the Rev. J. J. Curran, famous mediator and pastor of St. Mary's Catholic Church, of Wilkes-Barre, Pa., made a fruitless appeal for a speedy settlement of the strike.

Two Miners Were Late. The break up was preceded by an incident that was regarded by some of the conferees as an affront. This was the holding up of the meeting for an hour and a half by two delegates of the miners. Rinaldo Cappellini, colorful figure of the coal fields, and Chris Golden, a district union leader. The meeting had been called for 10 o'clock this morning. At that hour there was no sign of either Cappellini or Golden. They showed up at 11:30. The other conferees, meanwhile, had been kept waiting in the conference room.

Announces Break Up. Loud words were heard coming from the conference room immediately after the session was officially called to order, with the two belated arrivals present.

In less than an hour after the meeting was called the announcement of the break up was made.

Lewis Makes Statement. John L. Lewis, president of the United Mine Workers of America, issued a statement blaming the operators for the break up.

"As predicted in my statement at yesterday's conference the operators were determined to break up the conference without agreement."

"After a period of fruitless discussion this morning the operators moved to adjourn without date and demanded the mine workers second the motion."

"Conscious of our responsibilities and still imbued with the hope that agreement might be reached through the operators' abandonment of arbitrary policies, the mine workers refused to do so."

"The operators later seconded the motion and the chairman put the question. Under such circumstances the mine workers recognized that they would not through their own efforts keep the conference in session with the operators present and reluctantly voted for the motion."

Operators Statement. The operators promptly issued a statement, too, declaring after days of conference they could find no change whatever in Lewis's attitude, that he wouldn't consider any constructive policies—that his policy was "rule or ruin."

The operators' statement follows: "After many days of conference we find there is no change whatever in Mr. Lewis's attitude. He absolutely refuses to consider any constructive policies. In a few words his position is that he will rule or ruin."

"He has informed us in no uncertain terms that he cares nothing for the opinion of the public or public officials, chambers of commerce, business organizations or the press. He will have his own way or nothing."

"The operators' proposal, the Lewis plan, the operators and miners plan, all were discarded at length, only to be completely rejected by the miners' spokesmen because the miners' spokesmen were present."

"While the operators were present, the miners' spokesmen were present, the miners' spokesmen were present, the miners' spokesmen were present."

"The operators' proposal, the Lewis plan, the operators and miners plan, all were discarded at length, only to be completely rejected by the miners' spokesmen because the miners' spokesmen were present."

"While the operators were present, the miners' spokesmen were present, the miners' spokesmen were present, the miners' spokesmen were present."

Said proposals are neither workable or practicable, and while consuming time did not form a basis for any serious discussion. Their insistence was further shown by Mr. Lewis's statement to us that we might raise the price of anthracite five dollars a ton so long as he got what he wanted.

"The operators have had but one object in view—maintaining production at a fair wage and a fair price. This requires some means of avoiding deadlock and suspension."

"They have offered to open the mines, pay the old wages and while production is going on, submit every issue to arbitration. The utmost effort has been made to meet Mr. Lewis's views, but he will consent to no settlement on a basis on which the industry could reasonably be expected to exist."

"On the record of the past four years with three general strikes and constant threats of strikes, and the menace of disturbance in the industry by reason of Mr. Lewis's policy, the operators have been forced to the conclusion that arbitration is the only safeguard. Without this means of assuring production, the industry cannot perform the only function for which it exists, namely, to supply coal."

"The breaking up of the conference is due to just one cause—the refusal of Mr. Lewis to accept any form of settlement that would bring some assurance of peace to the industry."

"The operators have been trying to reach a sound settlement based on reason and justice. Mr. Lewis insists that force alone shall rule. Until his attitude changes, further discussion is useless."

Call Out Maintenance Men. Wilkes-Barre, Pa., Jan. 12.—With the strike negotiations broken off in New York city, members of the general grievance committee of the Pennsylvania Coal Company, representing 10,000 union miners, voted today to call out all maintenance men.

Resolutions were adopted and forwarded to union leaders, advising this step. Similar action was taken Saturday night at a meeting of the general grievance committee of District No. 1.

Urges Abolition Of Direct Tax

Assemblyman Lord Sponsors Resolution Calling for the Abolition of Direct State Tax—May Compromise on Straight 25 Per Cent Reduction.

Albany, N. Y., Jan. 12.—The lower house of the legislature today had before it a resolution sponsored by Assemblyman Lord, Republican of Chenango, calling for the abolition of the direct state tax.

The resolution also urged the lawmakers not to pass a bill suggested by Governor Smith for a 25 per cent reduction in the state income tax, unless the direct tax could be abolished.

"The big financiers," said the Lord resolution, "were the ones benefited by the income tax reduction of last year, while the farmer, the home owner and the renter received no benefit whatever."

Senator Nicoll and Assemblyman Hofstadter, Republican, of New York, have introduced a bill providing for a reduction in the income tax, but not in the manner recommended by Governor Smith.

Under the Nicoll-Hofstadter measures, there would be a personal income tax of three-quarters of one per cent where the net income does not exceed $10,000; one and one-half per cent where the net income exceeds $10,000 but not more than $50,000, and two and one-half per cent in case the income exceeds $50,000.

"We find there are many upstate Republican legislators who are strongly opposed to a straight 25 per cent reduction in the income tax but we believe they will compromise on our measure," said Senator Nicoll.

Dedicate Legion Building Jan. 22. Building to be Open for Public Inspection for One Week, Beginning the Next Day—About $5,000 in Pledges Unpaid—Contributions Can Still be Made to Building Fund.

The building committee of Kingston Post No. 150, American Legion, will meet on Wednesday evening at the American Legion Memorial Building to complete plans for the dedication of the building on Friday night, January 22. A suitable program is being arranged. The dedication will follow the ritual for that purpose used throughout the world by the American Legion. Prominent speakers will be present and the public is invited to attend. Commencing Saturday, January 23, the building will be open night and day for one week for public inspection. Everyone is invited to come and make an inspection.

On Tuesday evening of next week, January 19, the newly elected officers of Kingston Post will be installed at McCall's restaurant, followed by a turkey dinner. Members of the American Legion and Auxiliary are invited. Reservations should be made in advance.

The American Legion Memorial Building, now finished and furnished, was built by the American Legion and public spirited citizens in memory of those who gave their lives for our country. When the public inspection of the building takes place, it will be apparent to all citizens that Kingston has one of the most beautiful and appropriate memorial buildings ever erected.

Kingston Post is preparing a booklet, giving a complete history of the American Legion in Kingston and a full description of the building, together with a complete list of everyone who contributed to the fund which made it possible. There are about $2,000 in pledges still unpaid. In order to complete payments for construction and furnishing, it will be necessary that every pledge be paid. Those who have not as yet paid their pledges are urged to do so at once. Otherwise the bills cannot be paid and the names of those whose pledges have not been paid cannot be included as contributors in the official history of the American Legion, which will be distributed when ready.

All furniture and equipment for the building has been ordered and installed, except a piano. It has come to the attention of the building committee that several public spirited citizens have mentioned the possibility of donating a good used piano, but none as yet has been offered. Unless one is soon donated the committee will purchase one. If sufficient money is left for that purpose.

During the American Legion Memorial Building campaign last May, you were out of town, or for some other reason could not contribute to the fund, and now desire to do so, send your contribution to E. J. Carroll, Commander, 53 John street, Kingston, N. Y.

Report on Lockup At Ellenville

Fifteen Men Confined There Since July 9, 1925—No Attention Paid to Recommendations Made a Year Ago by State Prison Commission

Albany, N. Y., Jan. 12.—(Special.)—The state commission of prisons has approved the following report of inspection of the village lockup at Ellenville—Cardozo.

Inspected December 12, 1925. H. Worley Coons, village president, Harrison Baroes, chief of police.

The lockup is located in the rear of the village fire house and consists of three brick cells, each 5x7x7 feet, equipped with sanitary toilet and lavatory, and one bunk. There are four windows in the room and the place is heated by a stove. There is also a separate room for women, equipped with toilet and lavatory, and one cot bed. No mattress is provided and there is no heat in the room during winter.

In last year's report on this lockup it was recommended that no women be detained here during the winter season unless the room was properly heated, that the men's cell room and cells be repainted and the room cleaned, and that waterproof mattresses which can be secured from the superintendent of state prisons at Albany be purchased.

The place should be immediately given a thorough scrubbing and cleaning, and painted with some waterproof paint which will permit of its being hosed out. Mattresses should be secured at once, as indicated above.

One bunk was broken. The officer stated that it was not the same one as reported in last year's inspection report. He said that arrangements had been made to have it repaired.

Fifteen men have been confined here since July 9, 1925. No women have been detained during that time.

The lockup is sometimes used for lodgers. It was stated that two were accommodated here about a month ago. At no time should lodgers be permitted to mingle with prisoners.

Care should be taken that blankets are frequently washed and kept in clean condition.

Inasmuch as no attention was paid to the recommendations in last year's report, the village president should be requested to advise on or before February 1, 1926, if the recommendations as to cleaning up the place, repairing the broken bunk, repainting as noted above, and furnishing waterproof-covered mattresses, will be carried out.

Respectfully submitted, JOHN S. KENNEDY, Commissioner.

SISLER WANTS HOYT IN MCMAHON DEAL

New York, Jan. 12.—Rumors of another revival of the Marty McMahon deal between the New York Yankees and the St. Louis Browns were in circulation today as a result of reports that Miller Huggins and George Sisler had renewed their series of conferences in Florida. Yankee officials waited impatiently yesterday for word from Huggins that the deal had gone through but none came.

It is understood that Walter Hoyt, right hand pitcher, has been demanded by Sisler as part payment for McMahon.

Newest Hats Are of Medium Size

Headress Reflects Styles of Other Days—More Trimming.

The tradition held to by ladies of an earlier day that the bonnet and the hat were one and the same is equally applicable to these times. A modification of the severe cloche, writes a fashion correspondent in the New York Times, has been gradually becoming apparent and many of the new hats are fashioned to show something of the hair. They are turned back from the face, or rolled at one side, though all of the shapes are still worn low on the head. Some of the handsomest hats, in both the stiff and the draped models, show the influence of old styles such as the picture hats taken from old masters' portraits of great ladies. The genuine Gainsborough, though, has not yet made its appearance, and from present indications its return is a long way off. But the new hats follow more generous, graceful lines. The most marked compromise of the present season is the hat of medium size with more trimming than any have lately shown. The hat with larger crown and fuller arrangement of drapery is welcomed by many women on whom the tiny tight shapes are trying.

Some of the dressy new hats are distinctly reminiscent of the Charlotte Corday, the Directoire, the early English poke bonnet and other historic shapes. But they are cleverly adapted to the mode of the hour and show a tendency toward individuality for which the best designers strive.

Franklin Guy of Paris studies the individual as he plans his hat and shapes it to conform with the features and to flatter the woman who wears it. This ability to individualize design is an undeniable gift of great importance. It is most effective in millinery.

The cloche has not disappeared altogether, though its form is modified. It still represents simplicity itself, but with variants that make for grace and beauty. The small tailored or semi-tailored hat remains the correct hat for day-time dress, for street wear, sports and even for afternoon dress. In a somewhat softer treatment. All of the prominent milliners present the small hat. Monsieur Guy, Rehoux, Agnes have done some charming things this season, notwithstanding the limitations to a style of such extreme simplicity.

Changes in Shapes.
Most of the models are felt, beaver or some sort of cloth. The material is not inexpensive, since it must be of a quality to stand the cut edge. The changes in shape are marked. The inverted kettle, which the original cloche resembled, is seen no more. Instead, there is a model with a crown like that of a man's silk hat and a little brim gently rolled at one side. Another model that is especially popular among younger women has an oval, ribbed crown looking much like a football and a narrow flange that turns back from the face. A crease across the crown, a slight fold in the material or a slash in the brim with two ends finished at the back, are among the slight touches that vary the latest models of the best Paris houses.

The season has brought out some conspicuous styles. Some of the smart milliners have gone in for exceedingly eccentric things. Rehoux, Maria Guy, Camille Rogers, Charlotte Hennard and Monsieur Guy and Lewis have made some strikingly original hats with success, conforming to some degree with the conventional, but establishing some things of unusual type and artistic value. A black felt helmet completely covering the head and ears, with a metallic ornament in front, has a decidedly Cleopatra look. A brimless cloche is made of cloth with the crown completely covered with long stitches of embroidery silk, a stiff feather with two brush ends covering the back at a sharp angle. Another must have had its inception in a royal Russian headpiece. The high upturned brim in front is embroidered in another of pearls and beads of steel and scarlet.

Designers are inclined to vary the small hat as much as possible. The widened brim, the draped crown, the entire hat covered softly with a fabric and the turban in several variations are examples of the latitude in the fashions of the moment. Felt remains to be used in utility hats particularly, but the novelty of the season which promises to carry on is feathers.

Ensemble Idea in Millinery.
The ensemble idea in millinery is most attractive. A strictly tailored hat, Empire in feeling, of Oxford gray beaver is matched by a collar of the same material. The hat comes well over the eyes and is set at the angle at which men's hats are worn. The collar, straight, detached and high enough to cover the ears, is shaped like a cravat, and drawn through a loop at one side. This comes from Franklin Guy. Another, the creator of which is not revealed, is done in Scotch plaid. The hat is one of those melon or football shapes with a flange of cloth matching the red of the plaid turning back flat against the high-ribbed crown. A straight scarf, like a muffler, is made of the plaid wool. Pretty turbans of metallic brocade or plain silk in lovely colors are sold with scarfs of the same fabric. In some of these decorative ensembles fur is added to the scarf ends. From an important Parisian house has been received a toque of gold lame and Russian sable with a scarf of the sable in diagonal stripes, faced with lame.

Colonial buckles always were and always will be stylish. But each season witnesses some slight change in their size or shape. During the season squares, oblongs and ovals will vie with one another for first place. After all, the selection of one of them should depend solely on the type of foot of the wearer. It is only natural that these three types of buckles should give a different aspect to the shoe. The square buckles are solid, whereas the ovals and oblongs are more often seen with open centers, with or without center bars.

Quite popular in Paris just now are heavily jeweled shoes. These little enamel puffs, which look like tiny reversed cones, are made of gold or platinum chain that were first seen in America about 1916. The call for them has had plenty of time to die out meanwhile and will probably reawaken with intensity. Paris has also suddenly taken to wearing pearl necklaces, both real and imitation, hanging down the back.

Modified Evening Gowns.
A compromise has been reached in regard to the modern fondness for undress evening clothes. The new "backless" evening gowns are not really backless at all. They have long, colored chiffon shoulders, or backs to the waist, where the colored material of the gown begins. They are more, more nude in effect than the real décollete. The one great advantage, however, is that whereas few backs are really beautiful enough to wear a waist-cut gown, even the simplest back looks well under a veil of pale pink chiffon.

The fashionable long sleeve solves many difficulties. The smartest little frocks are being exhibited by all the fine lingerie shops in the thickest and warmest of crepe de chine, with regular Sarah Bernhardt sleeves, coming down to the hand, in white, cream, pale pink, blue and mauve. They are the most enchanting things, elaborate with drawwork, tucks and hemstitching. There is very little embroidery and there are some places to place on the sleeves these frocks a 21 in. worn often with fur coats. Shoes and stockings will be cold.

The latest stockings to strike the French capital have an inset up the front shaped like the old lace ones in which our mothers used to rejoice of heavy embroidery, in colors and gold. It is a fashion that requires fine needles, and as that is a thing that few French women have, it is unlikely to spread to any great extent.

It is only natural that these three types of buckles should give a different aspect to the shoe. The square buckles are solid, whereas the ovals and oblongs are more often seen with open centers, with or without center bars.

Quite popular in Paris just now are heavily jeweled shoes. These little enamel puffs, which look like tiny reversed cones, are made of gold or platinum chain that were first seen in America about 1916. The call for them has had plenty of time to die out meanwhile and will probably reawaken with intensity. Paris has also suddenly taken to wearing pearl necklaces, both real and imitation, hanging down the back.

This is a flattering material equally adaptable for sports hats or for more elaborate dress. Two materials in different colors are seen in some of the handsomest hats. This treatment gives a more "dressy" appearance to a hat of simple contour, with little or no trimming. Some rather extraordinary liberties are taken by the combination of silk face with cloth or velours in a semi-tailored shape bearing the label of a recognized authority in millinery designing.

Ensemble Idea in Millinery.
The ensemble idea in millinery is most attractive. A strictly tailored hat, Empire in feeling, of Oxford gray beaver is matched by a collar of the same material. The hat comes well over the eyes and is set at the angle at which men's hats are worn. The collar, straight, detached and high enough to cover the ears, is shaped like a cravat, and drawn through a loop at one side. This comes from Franklin Guy. Another, the creator of which is not revealed, is done in Scotch plaid. The hat is one of those melon or football shapes with a flange of cloth matching the red of the plaid turning back flat against the high-ribbed crown. A straight scarf, like a muffler, is made of the plaid wool. Pretty turbans of metallic brocade or plain silk in lovely colors are sold with scarfs of the same fabric. In some of these decorative ensembles fur is added to the scarf ends. From an important Parisian house has been received a toque of gold lame and Russian sable with a scarf of the sable in diagonal stripes, faced with lame.

Colonial buckles always were and always will be stylish. But each season witnesses some slight change in their size or shape. During the season squares, oblongs and ovals will vie with one another for first place. After all, the selection of one of them should depend solely on the type of foot of the wearer. It is only natural that these three types of buckles should give a different aspect to the shoe. The square buckles are solid, whereas the ovals and oblongs are more often seen with open centers, with or without center bars.

Modified Evening Gowns.
A compromise has been reached in regard to the modern fondness for undress evening clothes. The new "backless" evening gowns are not really backless at all. They have long, colored chiffon shoulders, or backs to the waist, where the colored material of the gown begins. They are more, more nude in effect than the real décollete. The one great advantage, however, is that whereas few backs are really beautiful enough to wear a waist-cut gown, even the simplest back looks well under a veil of pale pink chiffon.

The fashionable long sleeve solves many difficulties. The smartest little frocks are being exhibited by all the fine lingerie shops in the thickest and warmest of crepe de chine, with regular Sarah Bernhardt sleeves, coming down to the hand, in white, cream, pale pink, blue and mauve. They are the most enchanting things, elaborate with drawwork, tucks and hemstitching. There is very little embroidery and there are some places to place on the sleeves these frocks a 21 in. worn often with fur coats. Shoes and stockings will be cold.

The latest stockings to strike the French capital have an inset up the front shaped like the old lace ones in which our mothers used to rejoice of heavy embroidery, in colors and gold. It is a fashion that requires fine needles, and as that is a thing that few French women have, it is unlikely to spread to any great extent.

MELLON ON DEBT SETTLEMENT.

In his statement to the Ways and Means committee of the House, Secretary Mellon notes that "the foreign debt settlements do not seem to be clearly understood," and one of the points which he emphasizes, and would have done well to emphasize before, being far from "clearly understood" by the public generally, is that "the entire foreign debt is not worth as much to the American people in dollars and cents as is prosperous Europe as a customer." Senator Borah has expressed the remarkable view that if our navy should sail for France and present a demand for prompt payment it could soon sail for home with the money on board. In lieu of such lunacy Secretary Mellon takes the sane view that we can not demand the impossible, that foreign debts can be collected forcibly only by going to war, and that the war would cost many times the amount of the debt.

Secretary Mellon pointedly argues that we must accept what our foreign debtors are able to pay or get nothing, and he holds that it is proper and just to deal with each one separately. He shows that in the case of the British settlement we cancelled 20 per cent of the debt and in the Italian agreement we cancelled nearly 75 per cent. The logical conclusion from his figures and argument is that there should also be a generous cut in the case of France exactly proportioned to that hard-pressed nation's ability to pay. The only conceivable reason why this should not be done is that we have practically no French vote to please in this way and there is now no popularity to be gained by our politicians through generous or even moderately considerate dealing with France.

OKLAHOMA "INDIAN-KILLERS."

There has been much report of how rich Indians in Oklahoma have been shamelessly victimized by white sharpshooters. Now the news comes that no few of them have suffered worse things at the hands of an "Indian-killing ring." Apparently this is no mere wild rumor, for it is announced that the authorities have a confession from one of the culprits and are summoning 140 witnesses from three states to prove the case against the "gang." The story is one of organized murder on a large scale for high stakes, the victims numbering nearly twenty to date. "A fortune," we read, "of two millions in all allotment rights in the Osage district was the booty. To bring these rights into the hands of three persons a ferocious series of murders was perpetrated. The first death occurred in 1921, when a rich Osage woman was shot in a lonely canyon. One home was blown up, three perishing; victims were waylaid in automobiles, killed by poisoned liquor, taken to the hospital dying of mysterious ailments, or picked up dead beside railway tracks."

Often one of two heirs have been slain to secure the fortune or title to the murderer, a fact of human history that has been made the most of by writers of detective stories; but this killing by the dozen in Oklahoma and terrorization of a whole district for three years reads more like the most lurid detective yarn and reminds us once more that truth is more brutal as well as stranger than fiction. It is to be hoped that these murderers will suffer deserved punishment and that the poor rich Indians will receive assurance of some protection under the white man's law.

Musical lovers in New York now rise to their feet in homage when Paderewski appears, and in Chicago recently some 200 of them went a step or two further, mobbing and beating a Boston composer before he could leave town. The mob violence among our music lovers, however, is probably of Jewish extraction.

According to reports, some of the boys say that if they don't catch this Satch they will be nothing with the girls, and some of "the girls" say that if they don't start them they will be wall flowers. Evidently there is responsibility on both sides as well as unworthy effort to shift it.

It is stated that when Frank A. Munsey first went to New York he had only $49 and when he died recently he had precisely one million times as much. To be complete, the story ought to add that he was exactly forty years in accomplishing the multiplication.

VALUE OF A HOBBY.

A prominent daily newspaper has a "write up" of a prominent citizen every day, showing photographs of him as a boy, and at the present age. After telling its readers all about his business ability, his fraternal activities, his work on behalf of charity or his service club connection, it always finishes the story with the individual's hobby or hobbies.

These hobbies vary from the collection of rare pictures to that of butterflies or stamps, or from an active game like tennis to a more leisurely sport like fishing.

It would appear that every one of these prominent men, men who were successful in their occupation, who found time to help others, and who mixed well with their fellows, normal men you would call them, all have something in the way of a hobby, towards which they turn as opportunity presents.

Now there can be no question but that this hobby business works well for every type of individual. For the very stout person it will mean a little more physical activity, and for the lean individual it will mean a little more mental activity. It takes the mind off themselves and their work, because the lean person is usually the active, energetic, often "fussy" person.

For the tired business man or the hard driven housekeeper, something to take them away from the terrible "routine" of their daily lives is provided by some absorbing hobby. The lesson is obvious. Men and women who have done things that count, and are still able to do these things, retain a normal outlook on life because this "change" from work is even better than a rest as it gives the rest and a new interest besides.

Every individual has his own idea or taste about what he'd like to do in his leisure moments. The whole point, then, is to get started with something.

Life will be worth more to you, and you'll be worth more to others.

MARYLAND GOES ON RECORD.

The first six months of 1776 was the period during which America was deciding whether the Revolution should be a war for complete independence or whether there should be an "accommodation" with Great Britain, that is, a friendly arrangement under which the colonies would remain within the British Empire but with an ample measure of self-government. Every possible basis of settlement from absolute independence to absolute submission had its advocates. There were countless conflicting emotions.

For many years after the Revolution history writers made their work difficult for themselves and confusing if not actually misleading for their readers by allowing it to appear that the war was a unanimous revolt on this side of the water. It was nothing of the kind. The forefathers who first advocated independence, then won it, then established the Republic as the free nation of today, had more than an invading army to contend with, though that alone should have been enough to persuade them that their cause was hopeless. No measure of their achievement or of our heritage from them is correct which fails to take into account all their difficulties and their steadfast refusal to admit that there was any such word as "hopeless."

One attitude toward independence at the beginning of 1776 was well illustrated by the Maryland Convention, 150 years ago today, when it instructed its delegates in the Continental Congress to refuse to accede to a declaration of independence, or to alliances with foreign powers or to any confederation of the colonies which might lead to a separation from Great Britain, while in the same resolution it declared:

"Desirous as we are of peace we nevertheless instruct you to join with the other colonies in such military operations as may be judged proper and necessary for the common defense, until such peace can be happily obtained."

Six days later this Convention said of the Marylanders whom it represented:

"Descended from Britons, entitled to the privileges of Englishmen and inheriting the spirit of their ancestors, they have seen, with the most extreme anxiety, the attempts of Parliament to deprive them of their privileges, by raising a revenue upon them, and assuming a power to alter the charters, constitutions and internal policy of the colonies without their consent." "Entitled to freedom, they are determined to maintain it at the hazard of their lives and fortunes."

Thus spoke Maryland for the conservatives of early 1776—Englishmen still, but ready to hazard their lives to maintain the privileges of Englishmen.

THE SILESIA CHICKADEE.

Here is a strange quadruped found in East Prussia and east of that; a creature having little sense of equilibrium, and moving about in cartwheel fashion head over heels and vice versa. Being tephery, it frequently loses its balance and has to remain on its side, so that it develops corns on its eyebrows and gets scurvy feet. In this position he is easily captured and made into hash, pepper sausages, but throughout the ordeal, the chickadee, having a keen sense of humor, keeps up a hoarse snarl.

From what you can see of him here, the walnut head and peanut body are perfectly plain. The ears, which are cut off before he is put through the sausage grinder, are split into beams. A split peanut near, and split almond feet, along with a woppy tail and toothpick legs, make up the balance of the accessories. (Metropolitan Newspaper Service.) Tomorrow—The Mud Turpin.

City Hospital in Good Condition

medical and surgical staff, Dr. A. A. Stern, for the year shows that during that time there were 1,919 patients admitted and 160 infants born in the hospital. There were in the hospital January 1, 1926, 52 patients, making the total number of patients cared for at some time during the year 2,131. Of the infants born 7 died and 153 were discharged to their parents. Of the remainder of the patients 94 died in the hospital and the remainder was discharged either cured or improved, with the exception of 27 who were unimproved and four transferred to other institutions, and there remained in the hospital December 31, 1925, 50 patients.

Remembering that ours is an emergency hospital, many of the people being brought there near death's door, the number of deaths considering the number of persons treated, seems remarkably small.

For further details see the very full report of Dr. A. A. Stern, secretary of the medical and surgical staff.

Our Ladies' Auxiliary has done most excellent work during the year past. The large business that has been done, the large number of patients treated and cared for has called for an immense amount of work in the line of work done by the Ladies' Auxiliary and they have very effectively performed it.

Our physicians and surgeons are carefully and successfully attending the cases brought to our hospital and for much work done by them they receive no financial recompense.

Our nurses are doing good, intelligent, successful work.

Our hospital is in good condition. All of which is respectfully submitted by the order of the board of managers.

Dated, January 11, 1926.

JAMES A. BETTS, President.

Nye Is Seated
By Senate

Washington, Jan. 12.—Climaxing a five weeks' battle by western progressives, the senate this afternoon seated Senator-Designate Gerald P. Nye, youthful Republican insurgent, of North Dakota.

The result came as a distinct surprise to administration leaders who had opposed the seating of Nye on the constitutional issue that Governor A. G. Sorlie had no power to make the appointment.

By its decision in seating Nye, the senate inferentially ruled that a United States senator is a "state officer" as this claim was raised by Nye's supporters in arguing that Sorlie had power to fill all vacancies in state offices by appointment.

REPUBLICANS WILL PASS NEW SUBWAYS MEASURE

Albany, N. Y., Jan. 12.—Republican leaders of the Legislature today had virtually decided to pass a measure calling for an amendment to the constitution to give New York city $275,000,000 additional borrowing power to construct new subways.

A bill providing for such an amendment was introduced by Assemblyman Bloch, Democratic leader of the lower house, and Senator Toomer, Democrat of Brooklyn.

Mayor Walker was warmly greeted by his former colleagues in the upper house upon his arrival here last night. At the invitation of Lieutenant Governor Lowman, presiding officer of the Senate, he made a brief address from the Senate rostrum, pleading for greater co-operation between New York city and the Legislature.

New York, Jan. 12.—Industrial stocks displayed very little ability today to recover from Monday's violent outbreak of speculative selling. The shorts leisurely covered their short sales in the first hour or two, during which time the trend of prices was higher particularly in the issue which received rough treatment from the bears yesterday. But the bulls were not disposed to follow up their advantage and stocks were brought to market in considerable volume after the noon period and sold at concessions of a point or more.

In a spectacular run-up on odd lot selling, Texas and Pacific Land Trust, now the highest priced stock in the active list, moved 74 points to 785.

Wabash Common and Preferred Class A stocks were the leaders of activity in the railroad group. Pullman sold above 171 for the first time this year. Foundation Company gained 5 at 170, United States Steel kept above Monday's closing price level throughout the most of the session. Allied Chemical reached a new high above 120 in active trading. Call money was in good supply at 4 1/2 per cent.

Execute Six
Mexican Bandits

Mexico City, Jan. 12.—A special session of the Mexican congress to give President Calles extraordinary powers to deal with banditry, as the result of the recent Guadaluajara train robbery, is being discussed here today.

Federal troops have taken energetic action against the bandits under Nunez who attacked the train on Sunday and already six of the guilty have been executed. This brings the total of deaths of bandits and their victims to twenty. There is no information as to whether Nunez is among the bandits who have been captured and executed.

All those killed by the bandits have now been identified as either members of the train crew or second class passengers. Two women were among the passengers who were ruthlessly put to death by the desperadoes.

The federal troops are reported to be still in pursuit of the remainder of the bandits and it is believed here that the entire gang will be eventually brought to justice.

NO. 4 P. T. A. ENJOYS TALK ON FOODS FOR CHILDREN.

The members of the P. T. A. of School No. 6 on Monday afternoon listened to a very fitting and profitable talk on "Foods for Children" given by Miss Margaret Bodkin of the home service department of the Central Hudson Gas and Electric Company.

She explained in short in a preliminary talk her duties as director of this particular department in solving problems arising in every line of housekeeping.

Judging from the information received in this talk she proved herself very efficient in this line and from the interest manifested at the close of the talk by the questions asked and topics discussed it was proved that a permanent benefit was derived by the parents and teachers present.

While the subjects of "Nutrition of Children," "Food Principles," "Better Health Suggestions," etc., are understood by the majority of parents, the information regarding the individual problem cannot be obtained from literature on such topics as it can by a talk of this nature by one who has made a special study of the subject.

The particular phase taken up was "The Child's School Lunch" the points to be observed in the preparation of such lunch should be: First, the variety—in order to include the five essential food values, as proteins, carbohydrates, fats, vitamins and mineral substances. Second, the attractiveness, making the lunch as well as the food, third, supplying the end result with something that is palatable, perhaps it is better was that a thermos container.

All present were pleased to learn that at the April P. T. A. meeting Miss Bodkin would give another of these interesting talks on "Preparation of School Lunches."

Arrest Founder of German Generals

Albiontown, Pa., Jan. 12.—Charles Garland, eccentric Massachusetts millionaire and founder of April Farm near here, an alleged "free love" colony, is back at the "farm" today preparing for his hearing January 23 before Alderman Boyer on statutory charges in connection with the birth and death of a three months' old baby. Garland posted $1,000 cash bail for his appearance.

Bettina Haven, said to be a former New York newspaper woman, and characterized by authorities as Garland's "soul mate," together with Polly Scott, Sophie Sebasto and two other women, said to be former Russian countesses and whose names Garland told authorities was "nobody's business," all members of the colony, have disappeared and their whereabouts are, as yet, unknown.

The only remaining person on the farm was one who said she is Doris Bensch.

A large retinue accompanied Sheriff Senebach and the detective to the farm yesterday afternoon when Garland was arrested. When they arrived, they were greeted by police dogs, and were told that they were "not welcome."

The male members of April Farm were all present when the officers arrived. They are: James Stock, Paul Scott, Sam Bolton, Samuel Hartman and Wilfred Edwards.

District Attorney Boyle announced that even in the event the runaway mother fails to return there is enough evidence to convict Garland. Clarence Darrow, famous Chicago attorney, will defend Garland, according to Boyle. Garland's friends say his wife, Mrs. Mary Wrenn Garland, will not go back to him.

Appealing to Patriotic Germans to Banish Dawes Plan and Locarno
Treaties—Regarded as Appeal for Dictatorship.

Berlin, Jan. 12.—The critical German political situation was further aggravated today by the action of monarchists and nationalist leaders in issuing a manifesto appealing to all patriotic Germans to banish "Marxism," the Dawes plan, the Locarno treaties, and "parliamentarianism" as chief makers.

In many quarters the manifesto was regarded as a direct appeal for dictatorship.

The manifesto was signed by Prince Oscar, a son of the former kaiser, prominent war leaders including Generals Von Bulow, Von Geisler, Kraft, Von Delmaringen, and many Hitlerite chieftains.

The manifesto followed closely on the heels of President Hindenburg's ultimatum to party leaders in which he gave them until Thursday to form a new coalition. The ultimatum was interpreted in political circles as indicating that the government fully realizes the need for meeting the crisis with a strong hand.

Looming in the background as a possible, even probable development of the present muddled state of the government, is the establishment of a dictatorship under Hindenburg.

The manifesto described Marxism as "the instrument which has ruined our industries" and refers to the result of the Dawes plan and Locarno pacts as "slavery."

At the same time the Lokar Anzeiger opened a campaign against the Dawes plan, asserting that it had collapsed after the first year.

The communists lost no time in following the action of the ultra-nationalists and also issued a manifesto declaring in favor of a campaign for the "salvation of the German people." They called upon the working masses to stage demonstrations through the Reich on the kaiser's birthday, January 27, referring to the former kaiser as "head of the royal extortioners."

Dissolution of the Reichstag and establishment of a workers' and peasants' government is urged in the communist manifesto.

Radicals Oppose
Doumer's Plans

Paris, Jan. 12.—Surprise followed today in the fluctuating French political situation.

After it had been reported that the radicals would not oppose the Briand government, a group of disaffected radical Socialists deputies met and adopted a resolution requesting the chamber finance commission to reject the financial program of Finance Minister Doumer.

Since the Socialists and the radical Socialists compose the majority of the chamber finance commission, there is slight chance of the commission approving the Doumer program unless it is copiously amended, or the political situation takes another sudden turn.

It had been expected that the radical Socialists would offer no more than passive resistance to the Briand government, but the action taken by a portion of their number today makes the whole situation more critical and dubious.

But the laughter that rings truest and longest, in the hearts of men is the joyous laughter of right that conquers wrong; of triumph that rises out of defeat; of happiness that transcends sorrow; of love and forgiveness that are stronger than envy and hate.

Every month in True Story Magazine are vivid, unforgettable, heart-touching narratives written by men and women who have made mistakes, who have battled bravely, and who have finally won happiness from life in spite of every obstacle. # MILLIONS SAVED BY TRICK CAMERA Remarkable Illusions Produced by Versatile Movie Engineers.

Hollywood.—The movie public has many illusions that are carefully created by trick photography and the versatility of engineers.

These secrets of the trade conserve millions of dollars annually in the budgets of producers. The directors point out, however, that they are not evolved to deceive the theatergoer, nor primarily with the idea of saving money; but often are necessary because it would be impossible to stage the actual scene demanded in the script.

In the photographic tricks the most indispensable perhaps is the "glass ceiling" illusion. This is a device of painted glass placed slightly above the camera lens. On the sheet of glass ceilings, domes or roofs are painted to correspond with the actual set.

Glass Work Necessary. This glass work is necessary because of the lighting demanded by the camera. The roofs or upper parts of the set are not constructed. Instead strong flood lights are placed there.

Wrecks of ocean liners are enacted in a small tank in the studio. Howling gales are provided by mechanical wind machines. The "ocean" is lashed to fury by paddles, and the toy liner, perhaps ten inches in length, is tossed about on the waves by wires in the hands of studio assistants.

If the story calls for an explosion to sink the boat, a dynamite cap aboard is exploded at the proper time and the miniature craft sinks beneath the waves with exciting realism.

A recent example of miniature illusion was enacted in a picture of monstrous prehistoric beasts. On the screen they appeared to weigh tons and moved with lifelike ease. Before the camera they were models 18 inches high, composed of rubber and paper-mache, their movements manipulated by invisible wires.

Those Hair-Breadth Struggles. When the movie spectator sees actors struggling perilously near the brink of a precipice or on the cornice of a tall building, he may be witnessing a scene "shot" in two different places. The fight may have taken place on the studio floor, and the camera man may later have photographed the precipice or roof corner on the same strip of film.

Fogs are formed in the studio by a huge atomizer, which feeds cold vapor on the scene through perforated pipes concealed about the set.

Adept with high explosives, the engineers set a blast to wreck a dam, releasing a rush of logs and water to destroy a populated valley. C. they burn an actress at the stake with so little harm that she may be the belle of a party the next evening.

One engineer has patented a powder that burns furiously on the furnishings of a luxurious apartment. When the cranking stops the furniture is found unharmed and is moved to the next "social" set.

Even Hollywood scarcely knows these technical men whose exploits make "the filming of the impossible."

Famine Drives Church Colony from Mexico

Dallas, Tex.—Their dreams of a "promised land" in the valley of the Rio Grande have faded and the Menonites who sought to colonize in Mexico are yearning for their native home in Canada, disillusioned and destitute. There is a story of a land of milk and honey that failed to materialize.

The weary people two years ago followed a great hope into the southern republic, where they expected to prosper on the fruits of the land. And now they are homeward bound, longing to renew the more conservative life in the land where once they lived.

How they were beset with crop failures and famine was explained by half a hundred down-hearted members of the religious sect who changed trains here on their journey to Manitoba, Canada.

They predicted that more of the people will follow from the valley to which they said they were lured by romantic promises of abundance in a colonization enterprise. Several groups of Menonites have passed through here recently on their way to Canada.

Men, Not Women, Wed for Money, Judge Finds

Chicago.—Men, not women, compose a majority of the cold-digger class in Chicago, Judge Joseph Sabath, veteran jurist of the Superior court, declared at a luncheon in the Elks club. He has heard 35,000 divorce suits.

He said he had found that men, more often than women, marry with money in mind. "Women don't want money if they can help it," he asserted. "Only about one woman in 100 asks for money when there are no children involved."

"Temple and divorce usually marry old and wealthy men. In such a case I am in favor of the woman. It is a good lesson for the aged man who thinks he can get a young and lovely wife for nothing."

"The majority of women marry for love, but men in many cases think of the financial advantages."

Big Demand for Hoff's Services

(By Davis J. Walsh)
New York, Jan. 12.—Will the stable Norwegian out-hippodrome phantom Finn before the conclusion of the 1926 season in track and field?

This seemed altogether probable today when it was learned at the local headquarters of the Amateur Athletic Union that Charley Hoff, just in from Norway with a record as long as the beard of a prophet, had been buried under an avalanche of invitations to compete here, there and elsewhere.

Less than a half dozen bids awaited the pleasure of Panvo Nurmil upon his arrival in America one year ago. Today, there were upward of thirty invitations to Hoff and the same was young.

Some of the invitations were extended to Huber Houben, the German sprinter, who will arrive here on Thursday. Others mentioned Adrian Pavlen, the Dutch runner, or Goodwin, the English walker. But not one of them overlooked Hoff.

The demand for his services is all the more unusual in view of the fact that Hoff, with all his notoriety, had a total of not more than fifty appearances to his credit after a full campaign of record breaking. What will follow when Hoff slips a few records, as he seems destined to do, can only be conjectured.

Thus far, he has accepted only a few invitations, but before he left last night for Hanover, N. H., to begin training under Harry Hillman, he expressed the wish to compete as often as the limits of human endurance allowed.

When he does begin shooting at the records, the execution is likely to be frightful for the writer has the assurance of Lawson Robertson and other noted trainers. That Hoff is just about the nastiest individual who ever trod in spikes.

In the first place, he is said to be a great showman, which Nurmil was not. In the second, he has the advantage of a competitive variety that ranges from a 13 feet 4 1/2 inch high jump to a 154 mile run. If he does any of that kind of business in America, the loss of life at the turnstiles will be terrible.

CLINTON INDEPENDENTS AND SENIORS CLASH.

A match which has probably caused the greatest interest of any game played on Epworth Hall territory will be fought out Wednesday evening between the Clinton Independents and Clinton Seniors. The Independents have already grabbed one match from their brother team and Wednesday evening is the night set by the Seniors to even up the score. This match will begin at 8:00.

Manager Howard will probably start the affair with Niles and Ernie Greenwell up in front and Art Chipp and Boice in the back court with R. Chipp at the pivot post. Their senior coach has not announced his lineup to begin the match.

A preliminary game between the Clinton Juniors and the Trinity Lutherans will start at 7:15.

Big Leaguers in Florida Towns

Ten of the sixteen Major League Outfits Will Do Spring Work on Busy Peninsula.
New York, Jan. 12.—Florida, the land of perpetual plenty where the spaces are subdivisions and men are realtors, again will be the happy hunting ground for the majority of major league ball clubs during the impending spring training season.

Of the sixteen clubs, ten will train on the busy peninsula, two will go to California, two to Louisiana, one to Georgia and another to Texas.

It was the same in 1925. As a matter of fact, not a Florida-trained club has changed its base of operations between seasons.

The New York Yankees dropped from second place to the second division in one season after dallying in Florida sunshine, but wisely decided not to blame it on the latter and will return to St. Petersburg with the Boston Braves, who have played the Sunshine City for some years. The Philadelphia Athletics, Cincinnati Reds, Cleveland Indians, New York Giants, the Dodgers, Phillies, Senators and Browns also will play return engagements at the Florida resorts they favored in 1925.

The complete list of training camps for 1925 follows:

National League:
Giants, Sarasota, Fla.
Dodgers, Clearwater, Fla.
Braves, St. Petersburg, Fla.
Phillies, Bradenton, Fla.
Reds, Orlando, Fla.
Cubs, Catalina Island, Cal.
Pirates, Paso Robles, Cal.
Cardinals, San Antonio, Tex.

American League:
Yankees, St. Petersburg, Fla.
Spartans, Tampa, Fla.
Athletics, Fort Myers, Fla.
Red Sox, New Orleans, La.
Indians, Lakeland, Fla.
Browns, Tappan Springs, Fla.
White Sox, Shreveport, La.
Tigers, Augusta, Ga.

All Clubs Satisfied.

The Pirates, of course, could do no less than return to Paso Robles, after winning a pennant and a world's title after a single season there. In fact, all of the clubs, with the exception of the Cardinals, seem to have been satisfied with training conditions at the towns they played in 1925.

The Cards, however, have abandoned Stockton, Cal., in favor of San Antonio, the old training quarters of the Giants.
